

Too Many Tears

Iain Gilmour

Verse 1

You made it through another day,
You smiled and said it's all okay,
Now it's quiet,
You're all alone.
You shut your eyes and shake your head,
Try to lose the fear and dread,
When more tears,
Start to fall.
Everybody has to cry,
Nobody can tell you why.
But when it's ev'ry day there's something wrong.

Chorus

Too many tears, are you hearing the song that they're singing?
Too many tears, it's repeating again and again.
Too many tears, there's a reason they never stop flowing.
Too many tears, but they won't wash away all the pain.

Verse 2

It's like the world is out for you,
It doesn't matter what you do,
There's a darkness,
It's all around.
You wonder should you tell a friend,
But worry they won't comprehend,
As for parents,
What would they say?
Everybody has to cry,
Nobody can tell you why.
But when it's every day there's something wrong.

Chorus

Too many tears, are you hearing the song that they're singing?
Too many tears, it's repeating again and again.
Too many tears, there's a reason they never stop flowing.
Too many tears, but they won't wash away all the pain.

Bridge

If every day sees you crying,
If sadness is there every day.
If laughter is something you're missing,
Then reach out to someone and say.

Chorus

Too many tears, are you hearing the song that they're singing?
Too many tears, it's repeating again and again.
Too many tears, there's a reason they never stop flowing.
Too many tears, but they won't wash away all the pain.
Too many tears, but they won't wash away all the pain.
